

AI is transforming healthcare by enabling faster diagnostics and personalized treatment.

Machine learning models are used to detect diseases from medical images.

Hospitals use natural language processing to summarize patient records.

Key players include IBM Watson Health and Google Health AI.